A solitaire is timeless

The bigger a solitaire, the more attention it seems to get. However, there are different types of standard diamond cuts, all with a pre-defined number of facets depending upon the cut. The round cut remains the most popular, because the size of the stone seems large when compared to its actual carat weight. Considering the apparent size versus actual carat weight, the standard stone cuts for solitaires are – Princess, Emerald, Pear, Oval, Heart, and Marquise.

Apart from their beauty, which makes them highly desirable, solitaire diamonds which are certified by a reputed institute, are considered to be the safest investment. Also, solitaire diamond jewellery is a timeless creation and could even become a part of family heirlooms. Thus it is very important that one buys these precious stones from a known brand that gives a proper valuation certificate along with them.

In order to create the traditional JBP solitaire diamond ring, the precious gems are carefully selected and set in splendid jewels that are exquisitely crafted by master artisans and goldsmiths.

Talking about her latest collection, jewellery designer, Preeti Jain of JBP says, “Our latest collection is a beautiful amalgamation of aesthetic designs with solitaire diamonds, and the jewellery is very light in weight too.”
